Proposed rules make elections 'less of a circus'

By VICKI OLTROGGE
Universe Staff Writer

ASBYU's proposed election rules, waiting approval of the ASBYU executive council, will make elections "less of a circus and more of a serious event," said Mike O'Neill, ASBYU attorney general.

The main change in the rules is the omission of posters, flyers, and handbills on and off-campus.

O'Neill said the reason for this rule is to emphasize the qualifications of the candidates rather than the graphics they can produce. He added that graphics alienated some voters, therefore the elimination of graphics should encourage voter participation.

Lower costs

The cost of running for office will be largely reduced by the new rules, said O'Neill. The elections committee will collect a candidacy fee from each candidate. That money will then be used by the committee to place pictures and qualifications of the candidates in the Wilkinson Center, the Cannon Center, and the Morris Center, he said.

The money will also be used to print an elections booklet that will contain information about the candidates along with their pictures.

Each candidate will be provided with a booth in the Garden Court, ELWC, and the elections committee will print a brochure about each candidate that may be distributed from the booth or off-campus.

The candidates will also be limited on how much money they can spend off-campus, said O'Neill. While campaigning off-campus, the candidates may go door-to-door, but they may not pass out printed materials.

More debates

There will be more debates, more forums and more emphasis placed on the nominations to allow the candidates to prove their qualifications, O'Neill said.

The early campaigning rules will be relaxed to avoid some of the problems that complicated last year's election. Candidates will be allowed to discuss their candidacy and campaign with friends, said O'Neill.

Rules for campaigning in on-campus housing will remain the same.

Chris Doughty, ASBYU president, said he had not formed an opinion about the new rules because they had not yet been ratified.

The rules will be submitted to the executive council next week for ratification. "I think they'll be passed," said O'Neill.

Anti-abortion stance endorsed by Reagan in five minute speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cheered n by President Reagan, thousands of nti-abortion demonstrators marched o the Supreme Court Wednesday to ark the 13th anniversary of a landark decision they and the president ant overturned.

Later, two anti-abortion leaders uoted Reagan as saying in a private eeting that he might consider paroning abortion clinic bombers on "a ase-by-case basis." However, a Vhite House spokesman said the resident said no such thing and thers at the meeting said they interreted the president's remarks differently.

"I'm proud to stand with you in the ng march for the right to life," eagan told the crowd via a telephone ook-up between the White House nd loudspeakers where the marhers rallied 200 yards away.

March organizer Nellie Gray, rying "look how strong we are" to e demonstrators, estimated the rowd at about 100,000.

However, District of Columbia and .S. Park Police estimated the crowd 36,000-to-37,000 — a bit more than alf last year's crowd, which Park olice estimated at 71,000.

Many of the protesters left to lobby embers of Congress after completg the two-mile march to the Supeme Court building. However, everal dozen moved through police nes at the building and knelt to pray nd to chant "Stop The Killing" and ther slogans.

They were warned they would be rrested if they remained, and after everal minutes police began taking eople into custody.

Reagan praised the marchers and ondemned abortion during a five-minute speech interrupted frequently by applause and shouts of approval.

"We'll continue to work together with Congress to overturn the tragedy of Roe vs. Wade," he said, referring to the 1973 high court decision to allow abortion.

The president, who opposes abortion except to save a mother's life, also voiced his support for a constitutional amendment outlawing abortion and said, "Each child who escapes the tragedy of abortion is an immeasurable victory."

> "I'm proud to stand with you in the long march for the right to life"
> — Ronald Reagan

After listening to more than an hour of similar remarks from members of Congress, the crowd left the parklike Ellipse behind the White House and began a long procession up Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol and the Supreme Court.

Already at the high court were 10 members of the National Organization for Women, silently holding aloft a banner reading, "Thank You Justice Blackmun for Keeping Abortion Safe and Legal" — a reference to Harry A. Blackmun, principal author of the 1973 decision.

The anti-abortion marchers, who seemed about evenly divided between adults and children, were in obvious good spirits, cheered by their own numbers and springlike weather.

Hatch, Metzembaum may meet for debate

By ANGELIQUE SIMMONS
Universe Staff Writer

As Senator Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) sings the Ohio State fight song on Capitol Hill in Washington D.C. today, it may not be the last showdown between the two senators from Ohio and Utah.

Hatch will be paying the price for losing a bet he made with Senator Howard Metzembaum (D-Ohio), an avid fan and graduate of Ohio state, but Metzenbaum may be coming to BYU along with Hatch to stage a debate.

Metzembaum proposed a bet on the Citrus Bowl between BYU and Ohio State, and then sang the Ohio State fight song to Hatch.

The loser of the bet was required to sing the other school's fight song on the steps of the nation's capital for the whole country to see.

However, as Hatch chants "fight that team across the field, show them Ohio is here, hit them hard and see how they fall . . . let's beat BYU now," he will have the consolation that Metzenbaum may not have the last laugh.

Negotiations to bring the two senators to BYU are underway. They may be coming as part of Political Month, said Pete Valcarce, Political Month chairman. But final confirmation of their acceptance has not yet been received, Valcarce said.

SENATOR ORRIN HATCH

Hatch and Metuzembaum debated at Ohio State earlier, and Metzenbaum "would be returning the favor," explained Jeanne Lopatto, assistant press secretary for Senator Hatch.

Although the two are "very good friends and respect each other a lot, they always seem to be at opposite ends of the political spectrum," she said.

As soon as the results of the Citrus bowl game were known, Metzenbaum's office sent Hatch the music and words to Ohio State's fight song and now Metzenbaum is calling in his dues.

President Reagan OK's a plan to resume military aid to rebels

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has "approved in principle" a plan to resume military aid to rebels fighting the Marxist-led Sandinista government of Nicaragua, a White House official said Wednesday.

The official, revealing the military aid offensive on condition he not be identified, said the plan calls for $90 million to $100 million and would do away with a congressional ban on paying for ammunition or weapons.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said only, "The president has sought ways to support the anti-Sandinista movement there. We are working with Congress for a package, and that's the extent of it."

Public support

Reagan recently has stepped up his campaign for public support for efforts to cut off trade with Nicaragua and to isolate the Managua regime. The president accuses Nicaragua of fomenting terrorism and revolution in Central America.

The president met Wednesday with 47 of the 53 Republicans who control the Senate, but Speakes said he did not detail his program of aid to the rebels.

The senior official who spoke anonymously Wednesday said the president has not officially endorsed the specific dollar amount, but has approved the main outlines of the aid proposal.

Request denied

The Central Intelligence Agency gave the rebels undercover military aid and advice during Reagan's first term. But Congress last year turned down the president's request for continued clandestine assistance. It approved instead a compromise program to give the rebels $27 million in non-lethal assistance, such as clothing, medical supplies and food.

The senior official said the plan approved in principle by the president calls for about two-thirds of the total aid package to be spent for weapons, ammunition and other military aid.

Mexico and some other nations in the region have disagreed with Reagan's approach, pressing instead for further diplomatic efforts to win a regional peace treaty.

Congressional sentiment has been divided.

Indian judge convicts three Sikhs for assassination of Indira Gandhi

NEW DEHLI, India (AP) - A judge seated behind bulletproof glass convicted three Sikhs on Wednesday and sentenced them to death for the murder of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in 1984.

More than 200 riot police guarded the jail to prevent a possible attack by Sikh militants and to enforce a 48-hour ban on public assembly that authorities imposed Tuesday in surrounding neighborhoods.

One of those convicted, a member of Mrs. Gandhi's personal guard, was accused of firing the shots in the garden of the prime minister's residential compound, along with another guard who was killed at the scene. The other two defendants were found guilty of conspiracy.

No date was set for the executions, which in India usually are by hanging.

Gandhi was assassinated Oct. 31, 1984, four months after she sent the army into the holiest Sikh temple to route out Sikh terrorists who were using it as a refuge. Estimates of the number of people killed in the fighting range up to 1,220.

Special Judge Mabesh Chandra rejected the defense contention that the assassination resulted from a Gandhi family conspiracy.

Defense attorneys called the verdict "judicial murder" and said they would appeal.

Chandra found Satwant Singh, a 22-year-old member of Mrs. Gandhi's guard, guilty of murder and conspiracy and convicted Kehar Singh and Balbir Singh of conspiracy. Singh, which means lion, is a part of the name of every adherent of Sikhism, a sect founded nearly 500 years ago as an attempt to reconcile Hinduism and Islam.

Satwant Singh and another Sikh guard, Beant Singh, were accused of shooting Mrs. Gandhi. Police commandos killed Beant Singh at the scene and wounded Satwant Singh.

The judge read his order from a bulletproof glass booth inside a tiny makeshift courtroom in the Tihar jail. The defendants, wearing the beards and turbans characteristic of Sikh men, listened impassively from another bulletproof enclosure.

Judge Chandra said the prosecution "established beyond a reasonable doubt" that the Sikhs conspired to kill Mrs. Gandhi. The prosecution claimed the assassination was an act of revenge for the June 1984 army attack on the Golden Temple in Amritsar.

Sikhs make up about 2 percent of India's 750 million people but are a slight majority in the northern state of Punjab. Sikh extremists have waged a terror campaign for a separate homeland there that has claimed more than 4,000 lives since 1981.

The assassination set off four days of Hindu rioting across northern India in which more than 2,700 people were killed, most of them Sikhs.

Economists predict a sluggish 1986

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a year-end surge in food and fuel prices that economists called temporary, retail prices rose only 3.8 percent in 1985, held to 4 percent or lower for the fourth consecutive year, the government said Wednesday.

But the low overall inflation rate was accompanied by the slowest growth in the U.S. economy since the recession year of 1982. In a separate report, the government said the Gross National Product expanded by a lackluster 2.3 percent in 1985 — even slower than previously reported.

Economists said the twin reports pointed toward another year ahead of sluggish growth with moderately rising prices.

"We think 1986 will be a continuation of the pattern we had in 1985," said Lawrence Chimerine, president of Chase Econometrics, a private forecasting firm based in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "There is no danger of a recession, but we're not likely to see an economic boom either."

The Labor Department's Consumer Price Index of 3.8 percent would have been lower had it not been for a bulge in energy and food prices in November and December.

The index, which is based on the prices for a variety of goods and services that people buy for day-to-day living, was 4 percent in 1984, 3.8 percent in 1983 and 3.9 percent in 1982 — well down from a high of 13.3 percent in 1979.

For December, consumer prices rose 0.4 percent, a slower rate of increase from the 0.6 percent rise in November, but a bit ahead of the year's average monthly increase of 0.3 percent, the department said.

Fuel price increases began to abate in December, and government analysts said they expected even further drops in gasoline and heating oil in the months to come following a decline in world crude oil prices.

Declining crude oil prices, the result of a glut and disorganzation within the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, had not yet shown up in the December CPI. The index showed gasoline prices increasing 1 percent, compared to a 1.4 percent rise of November.

For all of 1985, overall energy prices rose a modest 1.8 percent.

Skyrocketing prices for fresh lettuce and tomatoes kept prices relatively high through the end of the year, the department said.

Congressmen find little evidence of U.S. prisoners alive in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress who recently visited Vietnam and Laos "did not receive anything" to encourage the belief that American servicemen are still being held prisoner there, the head of the delegation said Wednesday.

"I don't want to raise any false hopes," Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, told a news conference called to report on the delegation's recently concluded Southeast Asian tour.

Murkowski, chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, said the panel will hold hearings next week on the possibility that American prisoners remain in captivity in Southeast Asia more than a decade after the end of the war.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., another member of the delegation who returned last week from the nine-day overseas tour, said Wednesday: "It is my belief that it is very, very likely that there are some Americans there."

But DeConcini refused to say whether he believes these Americans actually are prisoners, raising the possibility that they may be defectors — a spectre the Pentagon long has acknowledged.

Murkowski said the delegation had heard reports that some Vietnamese were apparently selling or bartering bones believed to be those of American servicemen, but said he had few details.

The United States is pushing for a full accounting of the 2,441 Americans still listed as unaccounted for, including 1,797 in Vietnam.

Vietnam has steadfastly denied that it holds any U.S. prisoners, but it also has refused to permit American investigators to enter the country and investigate the reports.

There have been recurring reports of U.S. prisoners still being held, and Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Armitage said on Jan. 13 that 95 such "live sighting reports" remain under investigation.

But on Wednesday Burkowski said "we did not receive a lot of encouragement" for the view that Americans still are in confinement in Southeast Asia.

Murkowski and DeConcini both said they think Vietnam's refusal to permit U.S. inspections of the live sighting reports contributes to the belief in the United States that prisoners are still being held.

Nicaraguans express views on war

Exiles see little hope for Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S.-sponsored Nicaraguan rebel unity group, central to President Reagan's plan to resume military aid to the insurgents, has failed to heal the deep divisions that have plagued the war against that nation's leftist government, prominent Nicaraguan exiles say.

Many of the exiles, longtime opponents of Nicaragua's Sandinista government, also expressed doubt that even renewed American military aid can avert the rebels' ultimate defeat as long as the movement is run by leaders the exiles contend are hand-picked by the U.S. government.

Several added that the only realistic hope now for ousting the Sandinista government is direct U.S. military intervention to crush the Soviet-supplied Nicaraguan army — an option the Reagan administration has repeatedly rejected.

The grim assessment by leading Nicaraguans in Miami, Washington and California comes as Reagan prepares to ask Congress for as much as $100 million in military and non-lethal aid for the Contra rebels — a proposal expected to re-ignite bitter debate over Central America.

Administration and congressional officials say the success of Reagan's expected request hinges on persuading moderate House members that the United Nicaraguan Opposition, UNO, the rebels' principal umbrella group, poses a unified and effective democratic alternative to the Sandinistas.

"UNO will have to show that it is the legitimate political leader of the Contras, that it controls the military and has a platform for a democratic society for Nicaragua," Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said Wednesday.

But Nicaraguan exiles, interviewed by

"UNO is designed to do battle in Congress, not to do battle in the front lines, with the people of Nicaragua," said Silvio Arguello-Cardenal, a former Nicaraguan vice president, now living in Miami. "It owes its existence . . . exclusively to . . . U.S. intelligence agencies that provide it direction and exercise strict every-day control over its military operations and political pronouncements."

Jose Medina Cuadra, a Nicaraguan attorney living in Miami, said he resigned from UNO because "the group was set up to function on paper, but not in action."

NEWS DIGEST

Complaints stall action, delay explosives bill

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A House committee, apparently concerned with complaints that a bill to regulate the use of high explosives would hamper their operations, deferred action on the measure Wednesday.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Dixon Pitcher, R-Ogden, would require users to register with the state prior to purchasing high explosives. Users purchasing amounts exceeding 50 pounds would be required to undergo a proficiency examination.

Pitcher said the bill would reduce the chance that explosives could be used for criminal purposes, and also would help reduce the number of accidents related to improper use of high explosives.

The bill also would require that the state maintain a record of explosives purchases.

"We have no record of who has dynamite. It's being kept in houses, in basements. No record is kept," Pitcher told the House Business and Labor Committee.

The bill has been endorsed by the State Fire Marshal's Office, the Society of Explosives Engineers and the Association of Builders and Contractors.

Artificial heart research may be forced overseas

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Tightening government controls and the resulting mountains of paperwork could force crucial artificial heart research overseas, says Dr. William C. DeVries, the surgeon who pioneered human implants of the mechanical pump.

Speaking Tuesday to the International Symposium on Artificial Organs, Biomedical Engineering and Transplantation, DeVries said the "wave of future experimentation" likely would be outside the United States because of increasing regulatory demands.

"In the last two months, I've spent almost 20 hours a week doing nothing but writing papers," he said. "It's difficult, and I feel it will get harder still in the future."

Citing upcoming congressional hearings on the artificial heart, DeVries declined to elaborate on regulatory difficulties.

The air-powered plastic Jarvik-7 pump is the subject Feb. 5 of the House Science and Technology Committee's oversight panel. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has restricted implants to a case-by-case basis.

Dr. Robert Jarvik, inventor of the heart that bears his name and president of Symbion Inc., the company marketing the device, agreed that new FDA restrictions were causing "a considerable amount of delay and expense."

'He didn't want to do it,' lawyer tells court jury

COALVILLE, Utah (AP) — Francis Preston Mitchell should be spared a first-degree murder conviction, and the resulting penalty of execution or life imprisonment, because he never intended to kill airline pilot Fred Duncan, a defense attorney argued Wednesday.

The 24-year-old Mitchell, of Miami, is charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of Fred Duncan, who died of a single gunshot wound to the head on Aug. 4, 1984.

Mitchell "had no intention of killing Fred Duncan. It happened. He will tell you that. But he didn't want to do it," attorney Ken Brown told the five-man, seven-woman 3rd District Court jury in opening arguments.

Earlier, Summit County attorney Terry Christiansen said Duncan and his fiance, Patricia Tyrrell, were staying at the home of Brian Oliver when a man telephoned, demanding in an "agitated voice" to speak with Oliver.

Duncan and Tyrrell became alarmed and turned off all the lights in the home, but some time later a man burst through the front door and shot Duncan in the head, Brown said.

Fiery volcano appears off Iwo Jima coastline

TOKYO (AP) An underwater volcano has thrust its fiery peak above the surface of the Pacific Ocean near Iwo Jima, creating the first new island in the region in 78 years, said the Maritime Self Defense Force.

Crowned by a lava cone blasting smoke and rocks high into the sky, the new island is already 2,310 feet long, up to 990 feet wide and about 50 feet high, said Defense Force spokeswoman Miwa Watanabe.

On Monday, the Defense Force vessel Takuyo confirmed sighting the new island about 30 miles south-southwest of Iwo Jima, where mile high spurts of smoke were first seen Sunday, said Ms. Watanabe.

Professor to speak on national security

A former Hinckley Fellow will return to BYU Thursday to speak on "National Security."

Dr. Edwin B. Firmage, professor of law at the University of Utah College of Law, will speak at 4 p.m. in 396 ELWC.

The lecture is sponsored by the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies.

Firmage was born in Provo and graduated with high honors from BYU with a bachelor's degree in political science and a master's degree in history. He was a National Honors Scholar at the University of Chicago Law School, and was an editor of the University of Chicago Law Review.

He graduated with doctor of law, master of law and jurisprudence degrees.

Bombing suspect is ordered to Las Vegas

PROVO, Utah (AP) — An arraignment for a man charged with planting a bomb that ripped through a Nephi pharmacy on Christmas Day has been postponed because he was ordered to testify in a Las Vegas, Nev., murder trial.

Fourth District Court Judge Cullen Christensen rescheduled the arraignment of Kenneth Lahman for Feb. 4. Lahman, who is charged with three felony counts in the bombing of J-Mart Pharmacy, remained free on $10,000 property bond.

He has been charged with aggravated arson, placement of an infernal machine — both second-degree felonies — and the third-degree felony of burglary.

The store's owner, Mont Jensen, 41, Mona, was bound over to 4th District Court on Monday following two separate preliminary hearings.

Suits old; new style sought

Girls' swim attire at Y all wet

By DONNA R. KELLY
Universe Staff Writer

The reactions are very similar: students roll their eyes, giggle or moan. Usually they moan. And the search continues for a student who actually likes or looks good in a BYU-issue swimsuit.

"They're disgusting," said Noelle Phillips, a junior from Dallas, Texas, majoring in business. "You have to be really careful when you get out of the pool because they tend to sag."

They're black. They're shapeless. They come in polyester and nylon. They expand, bag and cling. And everybody in the Stephen L. Richards Building pool, except the swim team, wears one.

But hope is in sight. Twenty years ago the university invested in a large supply of swimsuits. The supply is finally dwindling said Bruce Holley, department chairman of physical education services, who said new suits should be purchased within the next few years.

"We'll be looking for a newer look," Holley said. "Nothing radical, but something more acceptable." The opinions of women faculty and students will be a major consideration in the final decision, he said.

Holley is aware of the negative and somewhat hostile attitude students, especially women, hold against the suits. "We realize they're not the best-looking suits," he said.

Fred Holmes, a junior from Tacoma, Wash., majoring in speech, said he felt the men have as much to complain about concerning their suits, but because of how the women's stretch out, there is "more cause for alarm."

Holmes said he always chooses a suit four sizes too small. "They stretch to fit," he said.

BYU's "utility swimsuits" are not representative of the university's Excellence in the Eighties campaign, Holmes said. "It's not fun swimming in industrial-strength suits. I don't see why they can't use a new style and still uphold standards."

Margie Spatholt, a freshman from Rapid City, S. D., with an undeclared major, said she only uses the suits because she has a swimming class. "I don't swim as much as I used to because they (the suits) are so ugly," she said. "Some of my friends won't swim at all."

Spatholt's main complaints were that the suits are "very unattractive," and the nylon material cuts into her skin. "They hurt," she said.

Holley said most students do not understand the purpose the suits are serving. "The unique design is not easily duplicated," he said. Thus, unauthorized members of the community cannot use the facility intended for students and faculty. Another advantage is that the suits are not stolen. "People don't steal them," Holley said. "probably because they wouldn't want to be caught dead in one."

The suits main feature is they are designed to serve the masses, Holley said.

"It's a durable and institutional type of suit," he said. "They're not appealing or modern, but they fit a variety of sizes. Skinny girls and heavier girls can fit into them."

Last semester, Ruthann Wall, a freshman from Naperville, Ill., majoring in health, redesigned one of the suits for a class project.

A blue, diagonal stripe was added, the legs were cut higher, and the front and back were cut lower.

Holley said he saw the new design and liked it, but to redesign all of the suits would not be economically feasible. Wall's design also defeated the suits purpose of "serving the masses" because fewer girls would be able to fit into it, he said.

The whole issue of the design could be dissolved by allowing the students to wear their own suit. This, however, would create a wave of new problems, Holley said.

"We'd lose our security system," he said. "The pool would turn into a beauty contest with the women playing the how-much-can-I-get-away-with game.

12 people hurt by air turbulence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — At least 12 people were injured Wednesday when a United Airlines DC-8 flying from Chicago to San Francisco ran into severe turbulence over Utah.

Flight 127, carrying 138 passengers plus a crew of six, landed safely in San Francisco where medical personnel helped carry the injured off the plane, according to airport spokesman Ron Wilson. Earlier, United spokesman Charles Novak said the injured included 12 passengers and a stewardess.

Most of those hurt suffered leg injuries when the plane "nosed up and then dropped down before stabilizing," said Wilson, who added that most of the injured passengers were not wearing seat belts.

"This type of turbulence isn't uncommon," he said. "You just don't know when you're going to get it. It can happen over any city, any state, at any time."

"It felt like the plane was falling to pieces," said passenger Grace Biesecker. "People were screaming and scattering to their seats."

Genes affect build of body

BOSTON (AP) — Whether people grow up to be fat or skinny depends in a large part on their genes and seems to have nothing to do with the eating habits they learn as children, a new study concludes.

The research helps explain why some people remain chubby even when they diet constantly, while others stay trim no matter what they eat: fatness and thinness are in their genes.

The findings were based on a study of adopted children. They often grew up to have the body builds of their biological parents. Slim offspring frequently had slender natural parents and overweight children had fat ones. There was no evidence that they mirrored the shape of the adoptive parents who raised them.

Many experts believe that heredity plays at least some role in obesity. But they also often theorize that fat people get that way because they learn bad eating patterns early in life.

"The real surprise is that the adoptive family has no impact at all, as far as we can tell," said the study's director, Dr. Albert J. Stunkard, of the University of Pennsylvania. "I had certainly thought that early childhood eating habits have a lot to do with becoming fat. They may not."

Authorities have long argued over whether nature or nurture is the key to obesity in families. The study appears to solve that controversy.

The study, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, was not intended to imply that people have no control over their weight or that calories don't count.

Executive Lecture Series

"Strategies for Personal Success in Food Industry Management"

Peter A. Magowan
Chairman and CEO of Safeway Stores, Inc.

The chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Safeway Stores, Inc., Peter A. Magowan, will be on campus today to tell students about strategies for personal success in food industry management at 4:00 p.m. in 151 TNRB.

His address is sponsored by the Skaggs Institute of Retail Management and the School of Management's Executive Lecture Series. The address is open to the public.

While on campus, Magowan will discuss what it takes to be a successful manager in the supermarket industry today. In addition, he will meet with faculty and members of the administrative staff.

"BYU has substantial numbers of students well qualified . . . in these areas. We strive to attract, develop and reward quality people to operate our company."

"At Safeway, we are committed to the same goals as the Skaggs Institute; we firmly believe that students need to know the opportunities in retailing and be aware of the credentials that the industry looks for in selecting employees," commented Magowan.

"As the world's largest retail food operation, Safeway works hard to find and attract top caliber students who are interested in combining business and marketing skills in the food industry. BYU has substantial numbers of students well qualified in these areas. We strive to attract, develop and reward quality people to operate our company.

To meet some of Safeway's needs for managers of tomorrow, they look to universities like BYU. New graduates interested in exploring the world of retail bring fresh energy and perspective to their company. Safeway welcomes those qualities.

"We have recruited at BYU extensively," adds Magowan, impressed with the graduates who have joined Safeway. "We have recently expanded the number of divisions seeking graduates from BYU."

Magowan began his career with Safeway Stores seventeen years ago. He was a real estate negotiator, assistant manager, and then a store manager in Washington, D.C. He was Safeway's first district manager in Houston, Texas. He then became the retail operations manager in Phoenix and in 1973 was transferred to Tulsa as the division manager. In 1976 he moved to Toronto where he was responsible for Safeway's International Division, comprising some 450 stores in Australia, Canada, the United Kingdom and West Germany. In 1978 he became manager of a newly-formed region which included the five divisions in California, Arizona and Nevada. He was appointed the director of Safeway in 1979 and on January 1, 1980, became chairman and chief executive officer of the Safeway organization.

"We have recruited at BYU extensively and are impressed with the graduates who have joined Safeway. We have recently expanded the number of divisions seeking graduates from BYU."

Mr. Magowan's educational background includes an undergraduate degree from Stanford University, an M.A. from Oxford University and two years of study at John Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

The purpose of the Executive Lecture Series is to provide an opportunity for executives to maintain a continuing dialogue with students and faculty members on a variety of issues and problems confronting business, government and society.

One of the goals of the Skaggs Institute of Retail Management is to upgrade students' understanding of opportunities in retailing. Most students are not aware that retailing has so many executive career options.

Cougar netters to host round robin tourney

By DAVID ELLSWORTH
Universe Sports Writer

Some of the best female tennis players in the nation will be in Provo going head-to-head with BYU's inexperienced tennis team in round robin play Thursday-Saturday. BYU Head Coach Ann Valentine predicts a high-strung tournament.

Even though the Cougars are the underdogs, Valentine said she intends to match volley for volley and try to continue the team's impressive record of upsetting top-seeded teams. The Cougars will be matched with No. 3 Miami, No. 4 Trinity, and No. 10 San Diego State. BYU is currently No. 15.

In December, the Cougars beat No. 1 teams from Stanford and Houston during a confrontation in Milwaukee.

The Cougars have had a high level of success against strong opponents. According to Valentine, BYU has one of the tougher schedules in the nation, but she said she thinks this isn't a drawback. She said the tougher schedule acts as a catalyst to spur the players to higher levels of performance.

Valentine noted the tougher schedule leaves the team vulnerable to a higher number of losses, but a loss against a higher-ranked team actually enhances the team's credibility nationally.

If a loss against a higher team boosts the team's ratings, then a win against stronger competition sends team morale positively heavenward. Valentine said, "It's excellent to beat top teams in that it helps us to get higher rankings and get invited to bigger tournaments and therefore play better players."

Whereas many feel the win-loss record determines the caliber of a team, Valentine said, "It's not necessarily your wins and losses but who you have played. You can beat 30 teams but if they're wins against non-ranked teams, then your record is not as good as a team that beats nationally ranked teams."

Valentine said she is looking forward to this weekend's matches when BYU plays three of the nation's top ten teams.

The tournament is free of charge and play will begin at 11:00 a.m. Thursday.

Freshman Michelle Taylor and the rest of the BYU women's tennis team will be in action this weekend. See Taylor story page 5.

McMahon ready for bowl despite bruised bottom

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon got his acupuncturist Wednesday and vowed to be ready, sore buttocks or not, to play in Sunday's Super Bowl.

"I'm not gonna miss this game. I'd never want to miss this game," McMahon told reporters from behind the sunglasses that have become his trademark.

"I'll play because of the treatments I'll be getting. I'll play because once you get on the field the adrenaline starts pumping and you put the pain out of your mind."

The bruise on McMahon's rear end, incurred when he was struck by the helmet of the Rams' Jim Collins in the NFC title game, has been the major topic of discussion in this pre-Super Bowl week when hard news is rare.

It became more so Monday after McMahon complained that team officials wouldn't allow Hiroshi Shiriashi, the acupuncturist whose treatments he said had helped ease the pain, to fly to New Orleans. But the Bears relented Wednesday and said Shiriashi was flying here from Chicago to treat McMahon and four of his teammates prior to Sunday's NFL championship game against the New England Patriots.

"If that's what it takes to have our quarterback play as well as he can in the most important game of the year, we're all for it," Bears President Mike McCaskey said.

Moreover, the Bears appeared seriously concerned.

> "I'm not gonna miss this game. I'd never want to miss this game"
> — Jim McMahon
> Bears quarterback

"With all the hype, people assume the injury is a put-on," said Coach Mike Ditka. "It's no put-on. He's hurting right now. He's recovered some from what he was last week, but he still hasn't recovered enough to play football. It's not serious, it's just a bruise, but it's very deep."

McMahon, who depends on his scrambling ability to keep defenses from mounting an all-out pass rush and ran 16 yards for a touchdown in the 24-0 win over the Rams, conceded that he was still having problems. At Tuesday's practice, he didn't work out with the offense but did practice passing.

"I can't run, I can't move around," McMahon said. "I can drop back but that's about it."

But he added that he was confident the pain could be eased by the treatments from Shiriashi, who also treats running back Walter Payton, wide receivers Dennis McKinnon and Willie Gault and center Jay Hilgenberg. McMahon said he had been introduced to Shiriashi, the trainer for the Japanese national track team, by Gault, a former world class hurdler.

Hannah-Payton ready for first Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — As the New England Patriots flew back to Boston after the victory over Miami that put them in the Super Bowl, John Hannah finally decided he had something to celebrate.

"He went to the back of the plane with everybody and was dancing and singing, which is not the John Hannah we know," recalls Ron Wooten, the other guard on New England's offensive line. "He had to be the most satisfied Patriot."

Hannah, considered by some to be the best offensive lineman ever to play football, will be making the first Super Bowl appearance of his 13 National Football League seasons on Sunday.

So will Walter Payton, who has the statistics to prove he's the greatest running back — his 14,860 career rushing yards in 11 years with the Chicago Bears are the NFL's all-time best.

Hannah and Payton profess to be treating the Super Bowl as one more game in a long career, Payton more so than Hannah.

Y looks for 7th straight tonight

For the second time in less than a week the BYU men's basketball team will play WAC opponent Air Force. Tipoff is at 7:35 p.m. in the Marriott Center.

Last Saturday, the Cougars shot down the Falcons 65-57 in Colorado Springs, Colo. Currently, BYU sports a 4-2 conference record (9-9 overall), while the Falcons are only 1-5 (7-10) in WAC play.

In last Saturday's contest, the Cougars were led by Jeff Chatman's 18 points and six rebounds. Junior Greg Humphreys came off the bench to contribute eight points and a team high 11 rebounds.

Still, the Cougars had best not take the Falcons for granted. Air Force has a modest one game Marriott Center winning streak, defeating the Cougars 82-79 in the first round of last season's WAC tournament.

"If you don't play hard every minute Air Force will beat you," said Ladell Andersen, BYU head coach. "They are a disciplined team with fine shooters."

Andersen said his team is currently "on a roll," having won six consecutive games. This is the longest winning streak during Andersen's three-year tenure as head coach, and the longest since 1981.

Hard play substitute for off-court shyness

By JEFFERY E. PIZZINO
Universe Sports Writer

Initially she comes across as a shy, quiet type — provided that first meeting does not take place on a tennis court.

She's Michelle Taylor, a 5-foot-6, blue-eyed freshman from Arlington, Va., and a welcome addition to the BYU women's tennis team this season.

Since the age of 14 she has been ranked No. 1 in the state of Virginia for her age group. Taylor's also been ranked nationally around No. 50 over the past few years. She said one year she was ranked No. 4 nationally in doubles.

Aggressive tennis playing

But her overly aggressive tennis manner does not always follow her off the courts.

"A lot of people think I'm shy when they first meet me," Taylor said, "but I'm really loud. I'm not shy at all once I get to know people."

Taylor spends most of her time with her other five teammates.

"All of us pretty much get along with each other," said Taylor. "We do a lot of activities together —like attending football games or going out dancing." She said there's not much tension on the team because of this closeness.

That closeness got tested last November during the ITCA-Rolex Central Regionals at BYU. During the singles competition, Taylor faced fellow Cougar Susanna Lee in a three hour semi-final match. After splitting the first two games, Lee won the final game 7-6 (11-9) and then went on to win the singles crown.

Taylor was born 18 years ago in Parkersburg, W.Va. At the age of two her family moved to Charleston, W.Va., and this is where her tennis career began.

Early tennis career

She used to tag along with her mom, a good club player, and older sister when they played tennis. It wasn't long before Taylor decided to try it out herself.

"I started playing tennis when I was eight," Taylor said.

Soon afterwards she enrolled in a children's tennis clinic to learn the basics of the game.

"I think I was 11 when I played my first national tournament," said Taylor. "I won 3 rounds and then lost."

After living a year in Boston, she moved to Arlington, Va. It was here that she finished No. 1 in the state for the next five years.

Taylor said it was tough being No. 1, but her goal during that time was to do well in the national tournaments.

After a successful high school career, the BYU coaches contacted her and she subsequently came out for a visit with recruiting intentions in mind.

Direction of coaches

"I liked the coaches. They had a good tennis program, a good school academically, and a great tennis schedule," said Taylor. She decided to come to BYU for these reasons, and the fact that she got a scholarship.

Taylor enjoys being under the direction of Coach Ann Valentine. "She's great. She's helped me a lot with strategy. She's a real supporter." Taylor said.

Being new at BYU, Taylor doesn't have a lot of friends yet. "Since I live off campus, I don't really know a lot of people but would like to make new friends," she said.

However, Taylor is exercising caution in her quest to meet new people. "I have a steady boyfriend at home; we've known each other for three or four years."

In the meantime, Taylor will take things a step at a time. "Right now I'm interested in getting a good education. I'm interested in sports medicine or physical therapy —something in that area."

After graduating, Taylor hopes to continue pursuing tennis. "I'd like to play the pro circuit sometime."

It's not only something she would like to do, but Taylor said it's something she has the confidence to do.

Tennis star McEnroe to take extended leave

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis star John McEnroe will take an extended leave from the sport, the Men's International Professional Tennis star said Tuesday night.

The world's No. 2 ranked player will not play in a tournament for at least 60 days, and it is believed he may not return to action until May.

McEnroe petitioned the pro council for a reduction of his player's commitment obligations for 1986, a spokesman for the council said. The reason given was for an extended period of rest and to get himself in shape.

The New York left-hander was granted the request.

It was not immediately known exactly how long he could remain off the Nabisco Grand Prix tour, but he reportedly told French tennis star Yannick Noah last week that he "won't be playing again until the baby comes."

McEnroe's fiance, film actress Tatum O'Neal, is expecting their first child around the middle of May.

Under the rules, a player ranked in the top 10 in the world for singles must commit to playing 14 tournaments during the year.

Rugby team wins on road

BYU's rugby team "put the freeze" on three strong California teams this past weekend.

The key game of the trip came when the Cougars beat second-ranked Long Beach State on Saturday, 19-12. "They were so much larger than us. We thought they were wearing pads when we first saw them," said Coach Lance Watene.

However, Long Beach's size proved to be their downfall. According to Watene, the Cougars simply wore them down in the regulated playing time of 80 minutes.

The Cougars — unranked in the pre-season polls —also faced USC and Occidental College.

Last Thursday BYU downed USC at the Trojans home field, 17-9. "It felt great to beat them (USC)," said Watene.

Less than 24 hours later, the Cougars faced a tough team from Occidental College and beat it 25-9. However, the win wasn't as easy as it sounds.

Watene explained that Occidental is very similar to the Air Force Academy.

Acrobats to share traditions

THE PEKING ACROBATS

In the centuries-old tradition of China, "The Peking Acrobats" will perform in the Marriott Center on Tuesday, Feb. 11, at 8 p.m. as part of BYU's Performing Arts Series.

Almost every act was created and performed by the ancient Chinese. With the passage of successive dynasties, improvements have been made and embellishments added, to attain the present "exquisite form and absolute precision."

The acrobatic ensemble of 26 has toured throughout Europe, South America, and North Africa, as well as a few major American cities. This year "The Peking Acrobats" are on their first coast-to-coast tour of the United States.

Chinese acrobats have trained in their art since the establishment of the academy "Chiao Fang" in 618 A.D. The tradition includes acts requiring years of dedication and others based on century-old myths.

The dragon and lion dances, for example, have mythical and religious origins. In ancient times, the dragon dance would bring rain. In addition, the dragon was thought to cure ills and encourage the birth of a male child. The lion was a symbol for the spirit of renewal and was revered for dispelling bad luck.

Tickets are now on sale at the Music Ticket Office, HFAC.

Y violinist will echo Bach

BYU Music Department faculty member Percy Kalt, along with 12 of his students, will perform six sonatas and partitas for violin solo by Johann Sebastian Bach in a recital to take place tonight at 8 in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC.

The program will feature three sonatas: "Sonata No. 1 in G minor," played by Mark Taylor, "Sonata No. 2 in A minor," played by Lee Ann Jolley, Michael Abramson and Heather McConkie, and "Sonata No. 3 in E major," played by Kalt.

The three featured partitas are "Partita No. 1 in B minor," performed by James Waite, Anne Norman and Ann Morrell, "Partita No. 2 in D minor," played by Karen Hales, Cheryl White, Jean Hill and April Meads, and "Partita No. 3 in E major," performed by John Tran.

The recital program will also include a commentary by Kalt and a slide presentation by music faculty member Glenn Williams. The slide presentation will include pictures of Bach at various stages of his life and slides of the original manuscripts from which much of the program's music is taken.

'Club Metro' in the works

The ASBYU Social Office is currently preparing for its second annual "Club Metro" to take place Saturday.

Though "Club Metro" is somewhat smaller than the typical weekend dance, setting it up can be quite a bit more difficult because the atmosphere is much more sophisticated.

The "Club Metro" will feature neon lights, spot lights, platforms for dancing, and virgin daqueries and pina coladas for refreshments. Paul Wheeler of "Sound Advice" will be the disc jockey for the dance.

Another facet of "Club Metro" is the drawings. Saturday, there will be a drawing for five ski passes.

"It's a new dance idea," said the event's chairman Lisa Jennings, a senior from Walnut Creek, Calif., majoring in English.

"It should be a lot of fun and excitement."

Class helps ease computer stress

By BARBARA ARMSTRONG
Universe Staff Writer

Eighteen students watch the film screen on a makeshift computer monitor in a tiny classroom of the Jesse Knight Humanities Building. They are walking through computer commands: attempting to write user manuals for local software companies.

The class isn't a computer science class; it is English 521R.

"Remember we have those nervous people we have to keep in mind. Some people are so terrified of hurting the computer or the disc, they won't click the mouse," comments Doris Dant, BYU professor of English.

New to the BYU curriculum this semester, English 521R or "Writing User Manuals for Computer Software," is a graduate level class designed to teach students to write computer user manuals. The students who are contracted to computer software companies are writing actual manuals and will be able to cite this experience on resumes.

"I felt students could be best prepared to find jobs in the real world if they wrote actual manuals for software companies," said Dant.

This is the first class of its kind to be taught on the Wasatch front, and probably the only class that actually contracts with software companies, she said.

"The class has had good support from local companies that may turn out to be potential employers for the students," Dant said. "Having this hands-on experience, the students will be able to use these skills in Utah Valley."

The class, which tripled its enrollment from six to 18, has a wide variety of majors from engineering to design technology to English and graduate students.

The students don't need to understand programing, according to the instructor. "Having little or no computer experience can be an advantage to writers of manuals because they will make the same mistakes novice users will make."

The trend of the past was to accept poorly written computer manuals, but as computers have moved into small businesses and homes, software companies recognized the need for better written manuals, according to Dant.

"Companies cannot produce bad manuals any longer," she said. "People want to get onto a program and use it right away."

Students are attracted to the class because of the actual hands-on experience it offers. "It is an actual work experience, not a simulated experience. When we are done we will be able to say that we have actually written a computer manual," said David McCubbins a senior from Kenai, Alaska, majoring in Korean.

"We can make mistakes in the classroom that we can't make in the working field without it costing us our jobs," said Joann Farias, a graduate student in English from Porter, Texas.

Another innovation of English 521R is "Desk-top publishing," a new technique in the field of publishing that allows writers to write the material and do the graphics on the computer.

National firm fills students' pockets

Students who find college to be more expensive than they originally planned, should apply now for the donated money available to them.

The Scholarship Bank, a national company designed to help college students finance their education, has announced ten new scholarship programs.

Scholarships, grants, fellowships, internships, and work programs are available to students in a variety of areas.

Education majors may apply for an annual $3,500 scholarship. Minority students will receive 25 percent of the available 3,000 awards funded by the Danforth Foundation.

Women over the age of 25 will be considered for career-oriented scholarships from the Business and Professional Women and the Soroptomist Federation.

Exceptional student fellowships for paid summer internships are being offered by a major insurance company to students majoring in business, law, computer programming, accounting and other related fields.

Internships are also available in political science, journalism, law, business, history and education through the Center for Political Studies.

The White House has 14 to 20 intern openings per year for highly competitive graduate and post-graduate fellowships.

Students in anthropology, biology, conservation, and marine science are eligible for field research grants ranging from $300 to $600.

The Poynter Fund offers annual scholarships up to $2,000 for students in journalism, law, public relations, business, history, and education.

The Scholarship Bank also sponsors a variety of on-campus jobs that allow students to work their own hours.

Many students are unaware of the funds available to them. Students interested in these programs and in learning how to receive a personalized printout of all financial aid sources should contact the Scholarship Bank in Los Angeles, Calif.

Lecturer to cover geography's role in poor countries

Geographic patterns of the rich and poor will be the theme of a lecture given by a BYU professor Thursday at 5 p.m. in 256 ELWC.

Associate Dean of Family, Home and Social Sciences, Dr. Richard Jackson, will address the topic "Geography's Role in Shaping the Culture and Economics of Third World Nations."

"The lecture will cover the geographic pattern of the rich and poor and will show the causes and importance of those divisions that exist," said Jackson. Students will be shown the contrast between the wealthy industrialized regions and the rest of the world.

Jackson obtained a Ph.D. from Clark University in Geography, with an emphasis on Land Use and Urban Planning.

Jesus' quote added later, say scholars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some New Testament scholars are taking a series of votes on the authenticity of sayings ascribed to Jesus, to sift what they think were his actual words from those believed to be put in his mouth by gospel writers.

In the first voting, a favorite beatitude, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called sons of God," was held to have been a later addition. Votes on about 500 sayings attributed to Jesus are scheduled over the next six years.

Robert Funk, organizer of the project, says scholars have not fulfilled their obligations to the public-at-large in reporting their conclusions about such matters.

"They have hesitated to broadcast the assured results of historical-critical scholarship out of fear of public controversy and political reprisals," he said.

DIAMONDS:
Everything you wanted to know but didn't know whom to ask.

You're looking for a diamond but don't know where to start? Here are some guidelines on how to get the best diamond for your money.

1. First, see a reliable jeweler. We can explain the differences in various diamonds and how these differences effect the price, like no other jeweler can. You see, we think you should know exactly what you are buying, especially when it's something as important as a diamond. Just ask a friend about the Wilson Diamond Reputation-impeccable.
2. Buy the best diamond you can afford. Most jewelers cannot even offer you the most beautiful diamond man has been able to produce "A Lazare Kaplan Diamond". These diamonds are cut to superior specifications for unmatched brilliance and fire. The difference in beauty really shows. Buy a diamond you can be proud of for generations.
3. Look for a store that stands behind their diamonds. We guarantee our diamonds. We replace for life any diamond that falls out of your ring-free. We guarantee your ring for life. We give lifetime services such as cleaning, prong checks and refinishing free. We guarantee you can trade your diamond for another at any time with no loss to you. We even guarantee the lowest price on any diamond or ring we sell, or your money back!
4. Find a jeweler who specializes in diamonds. At Wilson Diamonds you won't talk to a former shoe salesman. You will talk to a professional diamond jeweler, who is professionally certified. You will also find the largest selection of wedding sets to choose from. That's because we specialize in diamond engagement rings.
5. Find a store that won't be pushy. Pushiness by salespeople only means they need to force you to make a hasty decision or they probably won't see you again. At Wilson's we feel comfortable about letting you take your time. With all we have to offer, we don't need to pressure you into the right decision.
6. Lastly, find the impossible combination. A jeweler that will give all the above advantages and still guarantee The Lowest Price anywhere, or your money back! Impossible? Not at Wilson Diamonds. Save yourself some time and money. Come see us.

We please everyone but our competitors.

OPINION

The Hollands offer example

President Jeffrey Holland's call to students during Tuesday's Devotional Assembly to increase their loyalty was inspiring not only because the message was rendered so eloquently but because President and Sister Holland themselves are powerful models of that complex quality.

Their very concern about how students' actions impact the reputation of the university is evidence of their loyalty to BYU, and the passion of their desire to lead students down a better path hints of the depth of their commitment.

UNIVERSE OPINION

No one listening that day could have failed to be pulled into contemplation as President Holland, with obvious emotion, asked: "As preparation for the assault that will yet be made upon your character and convictions, is it hoping too much to see you cherish clear language and clean entertainment and hard work and disciplined behavior?

"If we were, this very hour, in a fictional foxhole somewhere against an enemy who put our eternal lives at risk, would I be safe in your hands? Would you be safe in mine?"

We knew instinctively we would be safe in his hands, and that knowledge has the power to push us closer to embracing the principle.

This is the time of our lives when we must make principles as vital as loyalty a part of ourselves. We must understand such important concepts and know how to hold them when we are faced with harder circumstances.

All of that can be made easier if we listen to the urgings of one of the excellent examples we have leading us now.

"At this crucial time in your life I urge you to give your deepest loyalties to the highest causes in eternity — those contained in the life and mission and gospel and teachings of the only begotten Son of God," President Holland said. "If we can remain true there, with an eye single to that standard, all other loyalties will fall naturally into place."

ASBYU wasting time again

The ASBYU executive council is at it again, wasting both students' and administrators' time, and now, ignoring President Jeffrey Holland's advice.

ASBYU President Chris Doughty said Monday the council plans to submit a constitution proposal to the President's Council that is a modified version of the one that was turned down by student governments' direct administrators two weeks ago.

They are doing this despite the direction President Holland gave them last week to ". . . go back to their Student Life people, work on specific proposals, and resubmit them."

"Specific proposals" is the key here. The direction to formulate and submit a variety of separate proposals to restructure student government came from the top administrative levels of the university eight months ago when the restructuring process began. President Holland did not give our elected student government officers any direction contrary to that last week, but the executive council is determined to have it its own way.

Revised or not, the new constitution is still only one proposal, which is being submitted with an attitude so eloquently expressed by Doughty on Monday when he said, "I think it's a really good plan and the administration would be dumb not to approve it."

The executive council appears to be making an attempt to go over the heads of its direct administrators with the hope that President Holland and the rest of the President's Council will be more receptive to their custom-made constitution.

They fail to realize that those very administrators initiated the multiple proposal direction. Why should they reverse themselves now?

The executive council must stop its desperate attempt to finalize the reconstruction of student government before their own terms end. There will be no progress at all until they follow directions and come up with multiple proposals.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Competent leaders

Editor:

The Universe Opinion of Jan. 16 shows a lack of understanding of the reality of the past few years of proposals to restructure student government. It looks surprisingly like The Universe has relied on a cursory rereading of its own articles in formulating its opinion.

Having been involved in trying to restructure student government, I do not feel that the current ASBYU officers are "floundering" or that they "need guidance" as claimed in the opinion's title, but poorly supported in its text. The Universe has made several erroneous assumptions in its opinion, which have led them to criticize these officers.

First, The Universe fails to realize that the process never got beyond the point where it now is. We are not even at the beginning because many proposals have been collected and summarized and all past work is still useful and valid.

Second, The Universe assumes that the lack of progress means that the student leadership "needs guidance." This is not justified. Believe it or not, these leaders are competent. They have worked hard and currently have a proposal ready for a student vote. They seek more input on this proposal. As with most things, fault does not lie with a single party. The administrators involved should also be looked to for an explanation of any lack of results.

Let's not be so quick to condemn the students. Like it or not, our administrators aren't perfect, and The Universe is wrong to assume that they are.

Thanks President

Editor:

Although I have never felt a need or desire to voice my opinion in The Daily Universe, those who weren't in attendance Tuesday morning missed a truly inspiring devotional. President Holland, speaking on honor, conviction and morality, took a strong stand for everything praiseworthy that this university represents.

It made me proud to see someone in authority denounce again the unsportsman-like conduct and immorality which has crept into our sports events and environment and become almost commonplace here at BYU.

Citing many examples of strength and honor from church history, President Holland reminded us of our need to be more representative of our heritage and personal integrity. He should be thanked more often publicly and privately for his example and devotion to us as students.

Honorable rally

Dear Editor:

I wish to commend those students and faculty on campus who organized Monday's rally in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King. What a constructive and truly honorable way to show our respect and gratitude for Dr. King and his accomplishments. Thank you for the opportunity to reflect with those who were there and those who have been affected most — AMERICANS, even here in Utah.

Linda Beckwith
Los Angeles, Calif.

Stop compulsion

Editor:

As a former (Israeli) BYU student I am upset with the wrong done to the Mormons by some Orthodox Jewish groups in Israel.

I spent a few years in the Mormon University in Provo. While there, I met with warm people who tend, almost blindly, to support the Jewish people, the Zionist movement, and the State of Israel. Moreover, none of the university's staff, according to a promise given in advance, had tried to convert me to the LDS Church. I would think that other Israeli people (students, faculty and family members) experienced the warm hospitality and a pleasant academic atmosphere I enjoyed.

Orthodox (Jewish) groups: Please, leave the Mormons alone. Mind your own business and stop your religious compulsion.

Missing the bell

Editor:

Monday evening (Jan. 13), we went to a fantastic basketball game in the Marriott Center. The team was sensational! (It was no surprise). We yelled our voices out (literally) as the Cougars went n to victory over the Irish.

Our disappointment came after the game when we ran to the Northwest corner of the Marriott Center to where the victory bell hangs. We were surprised and dejected to see the bell locked up. In past years, the bell was always rung after a victory. We thought that after such a sterling upset, the peal of that bell would be heard again on our campus. The joyous noise, however, was silenced by a lock, and we had to celebrate the victory in other ways.

We ask ASBYU, the administration or those in charge of the bell to please renew this tradition. We also ask all students to join in our celebration of the upcoming victories by ringing the victory bell and cheering our Cougars on to a terrific season.

Beeville, Texas

Sports worship

Editor:

BYU, I've been told, is the Lord's school. I guess that means that BYU then has the right to celebrate the Sabbath in ways that normal citizens of the world shouldn't. I didn't know that until I learned about the coach's show on Sunday.

BYU's tacit endorsement of football and basketball games being rerun on Sunday gives justification of sports viewing on Sunday. Missionaries, of course, are supposed to tell prospective new members of the LDS Church that watching movies and having recreation on Sunday are wrong. But that only means people outside of the broadcasting range of KSL, I suppose, if BYU is the Lord's school.

I guess that BYU people are the higher elite that are too righteous to have to worry about the sabbath. BYU keeps the Sabbath holy by worshipping football and basketball.

Bored with life

Editor:

In response to Steve Brown's letter (though responding may be unjustly justifying such drivel) titled "The Manipulators" (Jan. 16), I would like to offer a possible explanation for his misconception of the role of women. The tone of his letter implied that he was bored with his life, but was attempting to be conceited about his lack of a social life by chalking it up to being a student in the "toughest discipline on campus." For this reason, it is highly probable that the only female who could be the slightest bit interested in one such as himself would have to be a MAN-made robot.

Common good ideals declining

The shift of a societal focus away from the common good to the promotion of individual rights is an alarming threat to what has made our nation strong — a sense of belonging.

Bruce C. Hafen noted this decline of the importance of commitment and of belonging during the Third Annual Harman Lecture on campus recently. Hafen's ideas' far-reaching timeliness should be of great interest to those concerned about such things and the future of the family in America. They should become a rallying point for all those who believe commitment to the common good is a cornerstone of society.

The forces at work to undermine commitment to family, marriage, community and religions are very real and strong today in America.

An attitude that the individual takes precedent over such basic institutions as marriage has become the clarion call of prominent lawyers, pyschologists and politicians. These "anti-belonging" notions, even promoted by our own constitution, are a threat to an age-old way of life. The legitimizing of the individual over the common good has produced an "age of loneliness."

To some in our society, according to Hafen, belonging is an enslaving thing rather than an enriching thing. Those who shun such commitments and seek to lessen their import are only wanting while others are fulfilled by belonging.

To some it is too much to ask to make a lifelong mutual commitment of marriage, to think about joining a church and belonging to God, or submitting oneself to governmental authority. Can a nation tainted with such selfish attitudes long remain a bastian of liberty? The trend must be halted.

The place to start is with those who already believe in the importance of the ties of kinship and binding power of God to make those ties eternal. We should implement Hafen's thoughtful suggestions:

— The place of marriage and kinship should be defended against an emerging set of legal concepts that defend the enforcement of individual rights.

— As in ancient and Asian societies, we should increase our reverence for God and parents.

Finally, at a time when we rely on the government to solve all of our woes, we should take it upon ourselves to solve this problem within the walls of the nation's homes. No new government program can replace the need for belonging. The ideals of individualism will only be checked by those who can nurture such belonging.

— Joel Campbell
